

At-home use of 35% carbamide peroxide bleaching gel: a case report.

<https://arctichealth.org/en/permalink/ahliterature6318>

Author: J C Broome

Author Affiliation: 3rd Medical Group/SGD, Elmendorf AFB, Alaska.

Source: Compend Contin Educ Dent. 1998 Aug;19(8):824-9

Date: Aug-1998

Language: English

Publication Type: Article

Keywords: Adult

Anodontia - complications

Dental Devices, Home Care

Dose-Response Relationship, Drug

Drug Combinations

Humans

Male

Peroxides - administration & dosage

Tooth Bleaching - instrumentation - methods

Tooth Discoloration - complications - drug therapy

Urea - administration & dosage - analogs & derivatives

Abstract: When 10% carbamide peroxide is inefficient for stubborn stains and the patient experiences no sensitivity, higher concentrations (up to 35%) may resolve the discoloration.

PubMed ID: 9918106 View in PubMed 